

SECOND AMENDMENT TO THE CLAIMS

1-99 cancelled.

100. (currently amended) A method using a computer system of managing combined life insurance and annuities for a group of insured persons, comprising the steps of:

having arranged ~~arranging~~ financing from a commercial lender;

having acquired through ~~using~~ a first entity ~~that has to acquired~~ at least one annuity for each insured person using a portion of the financing from the commercial lender, wherein the first entity is owned by a second entity that is of a tax favored nature, and wherein each annuity provides an income stream that is allocated to the second entity so that it receives tax favored treatment;

having acquired ~~acquiring~~ at least one life insurance policy for each insured person using a set of third entities, wherein the owner of each third entity has an insurable interest in one of the group of insured persons, and each third entity has ~~acquires~~ at least one life insurance policy on the life of the insured person in which its owner has the insurable interest; ;

~~and~~ wherein each third entity is organized in a manner to shield the insured person on which it has acquired life insurance from liability from the commercial lender and from any taxes on the annuity acquired for that insured person;

and wherein ~~using~~ a portion of the financing from the commercial lender has been used to pay the initial premium for each life insurance policy;

administering income streams relating to the annuities, the financing, and the life insurance policies and maintaining information pertaining to the income streams using the computer system, and distributing the income streams from the annuities to pay the annual premiums for the life insurance policies and to pay the interest and principal on the financing from the commercial lender based on the income stream information maintained in the computer system.

101. (canceled)

102. (previously presented) The method of claim 100, wherein a portion of the financing from the commercial lender is paid to the first entity as a service fee.

103. (previously presented) The method of claim 100, wherein the second entity comprises an insurance company.

104. (previously presented) The method of claim 100, wherein the second entity comprises a business incorporated under the laws of the United States Virgin Islands.

105. (previously presented) The method of claim 100, wherein the second entity comprises a charity.

106. (previously presented) The method of claim 100, wherein the second entity comprises an employee plan.

107. (previously presented) The method of claim 100, wherein the second entity comprises an Indian Tribe.

108. (previously presented) The method of claim 100, wherein the third entity comprises a corporation.

109. (previously presented) The method of claim 108, wherein the corporation is a limited liability corporation.

110. (previously presented) The method of claim 100, wherein the third entity comprises a partnership.

111. (previously presented) The method of claim 100, wherein the third entity comprises a trust.

112. (previously presented) The method of claim 100, wherein at least one of the third entities is owned by the person on whom the third entity has purchased the life insurance policy.

113. (currently amended) A method of managing combined life insurance and annuities for a group of insured persons through a computer system, comprising the steps of:

acquiring or having acquired through using a first entity ~~to acquire~~ at least one annuity for each insured person, wherein the first entity is owned by a second tax favored entity, and allocating the income stream from each annuity ~~is allocated~~ to the second entity so that the income streams receive tax favored treatment;

acquiring or having acquired a plurality of life insurance policies using a set of third entities, wherein each third entity acquires or has acquired at least one life insurance policy on the life of one of the group of ~~an~~ insured persons, and each third entity is organized in a manner to shield the insured person on which it has acquired life insurance from any taxes on the income stream from the annuity acquired for that insured person;

administering through the computer system the income stream relating to the annuities, the financing and the life insurance policies and maintaining information pertaining to the income streams using the computer system, and distributing at least a portion of the income stream from the annuities to pay the annual premiums for the life insurance policies based on the information maintained in the computer system.

114. (previously presented) The method of claim 113, wherein each third entity provides funding to the first entity to acquire the at least one annuity for the person on whom the third entity has acquired the at least one life insurance policy.

115. (cancelled) without prejudice or disclaimer to its underlying subject matter.